Israeli Panel Rules for Deportation

JERUSALEM -- The Israeli Supreme Court on Sunday upheld a government deportation order against Moharak Awad, a Palestinian-American advocate of civil dis obedience against Israeli rule who has been supported by the United States in his effort in remain io the

A three-judge panel rejected Mr.

Awad's argument that as an Arab inalienable right to live in the city.

The Israeli justices also accepted the government's contention that Mr. Awad posed a threat to security and public order because of his support for resistance to Israeli military occupation in the West

Secretary of State George P.
Shultz, who spent part of the day in Israel on his Middle East peace mission, pressed both Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Foreign Minister Shimon Peres to reconsider the expulsion order at separate meetings on Sunday afternoon, U.S. spokesmen said. But Israeli officials said further review of the deportation order, which is due to

French Socialists Head Toward a Slim Majority After First-Round Vote

By Joseph Fitchett

PARIS - The Socialist Party fell well short of a predicted landslide in the first round of parliamentary elections Sunday but was still favored to win a narrow majority in next week's run-off ballot.

This would restore the party to power behind President François Mitterrand, after two years in opposition in the National Assembly.

Voters split almost equally be-tween the Socialists and moderate conservative parties, with the conservative alliance actually outpolling the Socialists by one point in the popular vote, with roughly 40

The surprising results, politi-cians said, seemed to set the stage national election under the Fifth for a possible experiment in serious political cooperation between the Socialists and some center-right politicians. In effect, they said, this could be a more constructive form of the uneasy power-sharing over the past two years between Mr. Mitterrand and a conservative-controlled National Assembly.

Mr. Mitterrand has called for an "opening" in French politics, be-youd the Socialist Party, to embrace the center, saying that "it is unhealthy for France to be governed by a single party."

The problem has added importance because oew aircraft, such as the Boeing 747-400, have longer range and will make even longer transocean, constop flights when they enter service. At the same time, other aircraft that employ two-member instead of three-member crews, such as the Boeing 757 and 767, are becoming more wide-spread. Some experts believe the smaller crews are more vulnerable to boredom and falling asleep.

No one is contending that fatigued crews have been responsible for any recent airline ocidents. But the fear is that a crew worn out by a week or more of repeatedly crossing multiple time zones will have its judg-ment so impaired that a seemingly minor Aviation experts familiar with the prob-lem are blaming several things, including

· Airline deregulation and the resulting increased competition among air carriers for pilots to help cut operating costs.

Some pilots are spending a week or longer on international flight schedules with long hours and multiple crossings of time zones. These schedules are disrupting their biological clocks, or circadian rhythms, making it difficult for them to get proper sleep during layovers.

Computerized navigation equipment and autopilots have lightened pilots work-loads, giving them little to do while planes are cruising except monitor the instru-ments. As a result, fatigued pilots are more vulnerable to falling asleep.

· Federal aviation regulations and pilots' union contracts address only the amount of time on duty, not the time of day the duty occurs. Thus, many multiplecritical approaches and landings.

"The economics of a very competitive business have really pushed schedules to the extreme," said Dr. Martin C. Moore-Ede, an associate professor of physiology at the Harvard Medical School and director of the Institute for Circadian Physiology, an independent research group.

"We have studied aircrews, pidden with them in the cockpit jump seat, and demon-strated that the behavior of nodding off in the cockpit is a very commoo ooe," he said.

Walt Coleman, assistant vice president of operations for the Air Transport Associ-ation in Washington, said, "I think the industry would be willing to address the issue of fatigue once we have a definitive study which indicates there are issues to be addressed. Right now, we don't know that there is a problem."

Federal Aviation Administration officials, while recognizing a need to revise regulations on duty and flight hours in international flights by American sir carri-ers, say they have not heard of problems involving pilots sleeping on flights.

California A Trial Heat Of Fall Vote

SAN FRANCISCO - It was supposed to provide a rousing grand finale to the nominating season, as it has so often dooe in the past. But with the presidential candidates in both parties all but cho-sen, the California primary on Tuesday has turned out to be a trial heat for the fall election.

LONDON - William S. Burroughs, surviving Beat, gun freak, self-described junkie and queer and, according to Norman Mailer who might have been expected to reserve the accolade for himself, the only American novelist living today who may conceivably be possessed by genius, has branched into peinting and is showing works on paper, as well as three made by paint and gunshot holes on plywood, at the October gallery off Bloomsbury Square.

The private view last week was attended by a crowd of 300, including Francis Bacon, an old friend from Tangier days, the writers J.G. Ballard and Michael Herr, film directors Nicholas Roeg and Boh Rafelson, Genesis P. Orridge, the musician, and prison visitor and anti-censorship crusader Lord Langford, who was for a time known along Fleet Street as Lord Porn.

Visitors who expected in see Burroughs the sulfurous oddball were greeted instead by a spry gent of 74 providing photo opportunities by peeping through a strong hole in a work called "The Painter's Light" and by dapperly swinging a walking stick which he uses, he explains, for purposes of gesture, not support. "Some of the jargon of art criticism really baffles me. I still don't know what deconstruction means, although I've read articles on it."

Burroughs's neat and worn clothes look as if they date from the 1940s: a fedora, shyly flashy tie and a striped suit which should have a row of pens in the breast pocket. His blue sharpshooter's eyes are shielded by modish aviator's glasses and his lips are thin and pleasantly curved: a mouth made for cosmic laughter, which is presumably silent and wry. His voice has the flat plausibility of W.C. Fields and his tightly stretched pale skin what he calls the look of borrowed flesh common to all who survive drug addiction. He is courteous, with the fatalistic calm of a true paranoise playing an interplanetary game of Find Your Adversary. The Adversary's game plan, Burroughs says, is to persuade you that he doesn't exist. Burroughs knows he exists in many forms — international capitalists laundering dirty money, vivisectionists, breeders of the AIDS virus -but he says there is oo point in being noset. "It doesn't accomplish anything, no one's going to admit it's true," he says. As he writes in his new novel, "The Western Lands," "Life is very danger-banks in terms of managing their portfo-lios. At this juncture it would appear that this flexibility indeed exists. You've seen very substantial resbuffling on the part of the banking community of their exposure. You bad the Morgan bond offering think, $3 billinn worth of this debt from the international banking community. You've seen a lot more innovation. So I would guess a year later, yes, we're feeling reasonably good about it.

Q. How has that event affected negotiations with these countries over the last

A. It's a new reality. On the one hand, the foreign countries recognize that the global financial system is less at risk by virtue of this problem. Io that sense, presumably, they feel they've lost something. On the other hand, they say, "Gee, you've already made provisions and that should give you greater flexibility in terms of being able to accommodate and provide for our needs." I've been quite deeply involved in the negotiations with most of these borrowers, both on a before and after basis, and I can't see the actual process has been affected at all.

Q. In general, are you any more optimistic about the debt crisis than you were

A. I'm quite a bit more optimistic. I think the world econnmy and world trade picture is improving, and that is the single most important thing. Countries like

Mexico and Chile have made major improvements in their situations. Countries like the Philippines are clearly doing well. A year ago, Brazil was an immense problem. Now it's doing quite well and is about to reach an agreement to get hack

Q. What still troubles you? cult. You have major developing countries that don't have normal access to capital flows. In the long term, that's an ontenable situation. With respect, the rhetoric surrounding the discussions con-tinues to be disturbing. There's a lot of political requirements surrounding these discussions. These are quite complicated negotiations that take place within a political and social as well as economic context. As bankers, we're not used to that. Traditionally, bankers do business in a more private mode.

Q. Is the plan proposed by the U.S. Treasury secretary, James A. Baker 3d,

A. Quite to the contrary, it's working. What Baker said — and for some reason the press has refused to give him credit for it - is that these countries should not be forced to simply collapse their economy in order to get back to some kind of

Q. The plan also called for the banks to extend new capital to these countries. A. I know that the head of the IMF. Michel Camdessus, made a speech where he alleges we haven't done enough. I wouldn't be impolite, but I would point out that the IMF and the World Bank are net collectors of money in calendar year '88. The new money we're going to put into Brazil, $6 billion from the banks, will indeed go to pay back the IMF and the World Bank. The banking system dis-persed $13 billion since the reserve decisions, primarily to Mexico and Argenti-na. For Citibank, that's $400 million to $500 million. The capital flows are greater than they were before Baker spoke.

Are they adequate for the task? Not yet.

Q. How will the creation of a border-corp, and what are you doing? A. It will significantly enhance the activity in the marketplace. We view it very positively and we sense that our customers are all viewing it as an opportunity. It clearly is causing us to heighten our com-mitment to Europe as a marketplace.

The tenth of the least Napa Valley Vintners Target 'Wine Train'

A lot of people in California's

Atortor people in Camorum s. wine-growing Napa Valley are opposed to a proposal for a tomist "wine train," The valley, Cerror Allega with its nearly perfect Mediterranean climate, draws roughly 3 million tourists a year, who spend about $170 million. The wine crop brings in $670 miltion a year.

The valley is 30 miles (48 kithe arenodious in inneters) long and four miles wide, with a population of 100.000. Prime vineyard land sells for $42,000 ao acre ($105,000 a hectare). Castro Says He Will Free 385 Political Prisoners

By Joseph B. Treaster New York Times Service

MIAMI — Struggling to im-prove his human rights image, Fidel Castro has declared that he is ready to free all but 44 political prisoners, including many who have been imprisoned for more than 20 years.

In a letter to Cardinal John O'Connor, the Roman Catholic archbishop of New York, the Cuban leader said that he was holding 429 political prisoners and that be would release 385 of them.

Most of the 44 men have been in prison since shortly after Mr. Castro came to power in 1959.

They have resisted political indoctrination and prison rules and have become known as the plantados, or rooted ones.

For years they were the most harshly treated prisoners.

American human rights experts say they believe there are several hundred more political prisoners in Cuban jails, and U.S. officials say sands.

Nevertheless, the group would be one of the largest freed by Mr. Castro in recent years, and both the private specialists and the United States officials said it would be a significant step in improving bu-man rights in Cuba.

Officials of the archdiocese would not publicly discuss the list of prisoners, but State Department officials acknowledged on Satur-day that it had been passed on to

A trend of gradual improvement in human rights appeared to have been interrupted with reports on Friday of hunger strikes and beatngs in Cuba's largest prison, Combinado del Este.

Enrique Hernández Mendez, who served two years in jail on charges of trying to leave Cuba without authorization, and the two other former prisoners, Edmigio López Castillo and Ramón Guin, said that in the most recent incident 44 long-term prisoners were assaulted last Monday and Tuesday after refusing meals.

Mr. Hernández said the prisoners were protesting being moved into refurbished cells, which they charged was an attempt to create a false impression for experts from the International Committee of the Red Cross and the United Nations.

Cuban diplomats in Washington did not return telephone calls seeking comment:

WASHINGTON - Federal health officials now project that at least 450,000 Americans will have diagnosed with AIDS by the end of 1993, and that as many as 100,000 new cases will be reported in that year alone.

The estimates represent the first major revisions in two years of the nation's projected AIDS case load and they are the first to extend the original Public Health Service figures beyond the 270,000 people expected to develop the disease by 1991.

The new figures were presented privately last week to more than 150 senior Health Service officials who had gathered in Charlottesville, Virginia, to plan the federal response to the future of the AIDS epidemic. Although the continued growth of the epidemic presents difficult problems for the health service, federal officials say the financial implications for the public health care system are among the

The two sides are to meet Tuesday in Managua for a fourth negotiating session aimed at ending their seven-year conflict.

"In recent days their attacks have been increasing," General Ortega said at a news conference. "If they opt for war they will lose all they can gain at the negotiating table."

The Sandinists say they have made major concessions to the rebels by promising to meet their demands for significant moves toward democracy.

General Ortega said rebel at-tacks in some parts of northern and central Nicaragua were almost back to their levels before the cease-fire went into effect April 1. He said, however, that the rebels, who are known as the contras, were divided in their support of Mr. Ber-

The Ukrainian Catholic Church, one of the Eastern Rite churches that recognize the Roman Catholie pope, officially dissolved itself in 1946 under pressure from Stalin. Many of its bishops and priests were jailed or exiled, its faithful have held secret outdoor meetings or have worshiped to apartments or abandoned Orthodox churches in rural areas of the western Ukraioe.

Estimates of the number of Ukrainian Catholics vary widely. Keston College, a British institution that monitors religious freedom in the Soviet Union, puts the But despite his obvious pleasure oumber at about three million.

Caen Remembers Battle of Normandy

By Barry James nal Herald Tribune

CAEN, France - Marking the 44th anniversary of the D-Day landing, Caen is to mangirate on Monday a museum commemo-rating the battle of Normandy.

President François Mitterrand and Prime Minister Michel Rocard are scheduled to open the museum, which rises above the wartime bunker where German commanders fought a desperate 76-day battle against al-

Mayor Jean-Marie Giranlt ordered the building of the museum to crown the reconstruction of Caen, most of which was left in rums after the war, and to he a lesson to help future generations avoid similar conflicts.

The concept has received broad support in the United States, where more than 15,000 people have contributed to a fund that is to be used to help turn the museum into an important research center into the causes of war and the events of World War II.

At the ceremony Sunday in which the approach to the museum was named after the allied commander in the battle, General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Mr. Girault said the um helps symbolize the fact that France is eternally grateful to the United States for having given us back our liberty and dignity.

Anthony Stout, chairman of the U.S. committee for the memorial museum, said that the building stands for what General Eisenhower believed in - the association of free peoples for the defense of liberty and the value of education.

"It is a brilliant concept," he said. "I hope millions of young people will come to visit

The museum is concerned with ideas rather than military hardware. It sets out to recreate the mood, the sounds and the fears of the years leading up to World War II, and then to guide visitors through the events of the battle of Normandy, which involved three million combatants from a dozen nations and resulted to 367,000 casualties.

The facade of the building is a flat escarpment of Normandy stone with a symbolic dash down the middle and the words written by a survivor of the baule: "Suffering broke me. Brotherhood raised me. From my wounds springs a fountain of liberty."

Inside visitors descend a huge cylinder that acts as a time capsule. Through photographs, texts, maps and video images of the furemberg rally, they are led through history from the surrender of Germany in World War I to the surrender of France in World War II.

The circular passageway down the cylinder gets darker and gloomier until the visitor steps into a darkened chamber dominated by a projected image of a frenzied Hitler and the

"I am a communicator, not a historian, although I worked with many historians,"

Yves Devraine, the museum's designer, said.
"I want people not just to look at the exhibits but to be able to understand what it was like to live through those times." Whether he has succeeded will be up to the judgment of each individual, for this is an exposition that continually pulls at the emotions and frequently shocks with its images of

The battle is recreated in a spectacular novie, while the day-to-day progress of the fighting is projected onto huge screens that turn like the pages of a book.

Throughout the boilding, visitors can deepen their knowledge by consulting computer terminals linked to the museum's research resources. A documentation center and library provides more information for anyone wishing to find out about particular aspects of the battle.

A final film and sound show bring history up to date, by emphasizing the possible causes of future conflicts and by emphasizing that the museum of Caen is meant to be oot a glorification of war but a lesson in peace.

voice to his fondest hopes in his address in London on Friday. Speaking of his Mos-cow trip, he allowed himself to suggest that "a new era in history" is dawning. For these and other incautious remarks, he will be roundly tut-tutted oow that be is home, not least by those who were originally closest to him politically. Surely some part of Mr. Reagan is perfectly aware that he overspoke. Yet his Loodoo message should not he dismissed merely as a bout of not unprecedented summit-induced euphoria. There is more to it than that.

Sophisticated students of history and politics will know how dangerous it is to hail new eras in history. But something important lonks to he changing, and people should not let habit and discretion prevent them from seeing it. Mr. Reagan spoke of his 1982 "crusade for freedom" speech in London. It was a powerful speech suggesting that large forces were in motion and great values at stake. Many pooh-poohed Mr. Reagan, but six years later it is evident that he had a point. If change is not as sweeping and permanent as he would like, it cuts broader and deeper than the scoffers imagined. The INF Treaty, withdrawal from Afghanistan and incipient reforms in the Soviet Union - the troika of events that Mr. Reagan mendoned on Friday - are not conclusive, he said, but they are momentous. Well, they deserve to he taken in their totality as pretty close to that.

Those who fear that Mr. Reagan may he

It was Rouald Reagan's moment to give going overboard will perhaps be comforted on the cold water being sprinkled on the "new era" by no less authoritative a Soviet source than Mikhail Gorbachev. The Soviet leader detects "a lot of contradictions" in the Reagan position. "On the one hand," he summed up, "we have a joint statement that there should be no war, that war is inadmissible, we are engaged in a businesslike dialogue about arms reductions, we're talking about preferences for political solutions fin regional conflicts]. And yet, on the other hand, we keep hearing ... words about a stake made on strength ... "He went on: This is to he seen in economic ties also, where an authoritative part - sections of the American business circles are in favor of cooperation, but they are faced with intimidation, with all sorts of restrictions."

General Secretary Gorbachev is right. Notwithstanding President Reagan's London enthusiasms, there are contradictions. We would argue, however, that they are not unfounded, reflecting as they do the existing uncertainty and complexity, and they need not be crippling. "Let us em-brace honest change when it occurs," Mr. Reagan said on Friday, "but let us also he wary." This is the essential "contradic-tion" that has brought the progress and This is the essential "contradicpromise now in view. It is a formulation that banishes the patronizing and misguided question of whether the West should "help" Mr. Gorbachev. It is a simple and reliable basis on which to proceed.

major victories last week. His negotiators reached an agreement in principle with the International Monetary Fund on new economic support, And the Brazilian Congress said that he could remain in office through 1990. He now has breathing space to reverse a disastrous economic course. Outsiders, including American banks, can help him, but too much meddling could strengthen the very forces he needs to overcome.

Brazil ended 2I years of military rule in 1985. Three years of inconsistent economic management under Mr. Sarney have sapped confidence in its once well regarded economy. A parade of economic ministers has ierked the world's eighth largest capitalist economy back and forth between free spending and austerity, price controls and laissezfaire, protectionism and openness.

It is not so much transition to democracy that is to blame as the lack of it. Mr. Sarney took office without a popular election and had no experience with democratic institutions. Eager to create a popular base, he has been unable to resist special interests or to demand oeeded sacrifices. This has fed inflation, corruption and drift.

Prodded by Finance Minister Mailson Ferreira da Nobrega, Mr. Sarney agreed to the tariffs and regulations impede foreign trade and investment. Government payrolls a major contributor to budget deficits and inflation, have been temporarily frozen. Cooperation with the IMF has been resumed. Brazilian negotiators now look to early agreement with commercial banks on rescheduling $62 billion in outstanding debt.

Regrettably, a less realistic economic agenda is being advanced by Brazil's popularly elected Congress. Dominated by a nationalist coalition embracing both left and right, it has loaded the draft of a new constitution with restrictions on foreign investment, and it has blocked land reform.

Most alarming, Brazil's still powerful military interests have again become power brokers, Mr. Sarney, faced with strong popular opposition to a longer term, preva only after military commanders leaned heavily on Congress. Yet the military is also protectionist and profligate.

Thus President Samey is sure to remain under heavy pressure to abandon his new. liberal economic course. It would be wise for his creditors - and Washington - to strengthen his resolve by agreeing to a sensible program of debt relief. But crude displays of pressure would only strengthen the powerful hand of Brazil's economic nationalists. - THE NEW YORK TIMES.

His Struggle Goes On

An unkind fate has dealt another blow to doe, with or without President Duarte, has Salvador, Mr. Duarte, who is 62, is now in Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, ill with cancer, and he has had to turn over his duties to the vice president. What kind of leader has Mr. Duarte been? His qualities as a manager and tactician were never highly praised. He cannot claim the clear-cut, irreversible national achievement that would give his name a historic ring. But he has been that most valuable and admirable of politicians: a serious and decent person who chose to devote himself over the decades to the seemingly impossible mission of moving from his religious faith to the building of democracy in just about the most inhospitable circumstances imaginable.

For his efforts he has suffered grievous personal and family injury at the hands of right and left alike. Yet he has persisted in advancing the civilizing democratic element m a political landscape dominated by barbarities. He has sought to create the institutions of a modern, self-governing society in a place where caprice and violence otherwise hold sway. Against immense odds he has struggled to create a center and make it hold. Whether that center will hold in El Salvadecade. The country continues to be brutalized by what Mr. Duarte the other day called a "senseless and cruel" civil war that pits a flailing government against relentless Marxist-led guerrillas. The war has ensured that resources and a leading role necessarily flow to a military which, despite Mr. Duarte's exertions, is still tightly fastened at many levels to an unreconstructed landholding oligarchy which hates Mr. Duarte. His Christian Democratic party lost the legislature to this faction in March. His foes on left and right have used the chaos of the war and the political space opened up by his democratic progress to defy the rule of law. These days the guerrillas, ignoring peace efforts else-where in Central America, practice their familiar cruelties, and some of the old death squads are resuming their dark ways.

The United States bet heavily on President Duarte, figuring that he was as good a democratic leader as the region could possibly provide. Inevitably, that wager created a context in which U.S. policy goals were heavily mortgaged to the fate of this one man. His struggle goes on.

Japanese Aid for Indonesia

Japan's aid commitment to Indonesia for 1988-89, which represents an 87 percent increase from last year, gives strong evidence of the Japanese government's strong policial commitment to help, based on the special quality and depth of relations between the two countries. The $2.3 billion aid package is also significant as it will provide an important signal to the international financial market that donors support the Indonesian government's adjustment measures and have confidence in Indonesian economic prospects. The Japanese government apparently fully realizes that Indonesia's severe liquidity problems at present have been caused mainly by external factors outside its control - volatile currency rates, notably the high yen appreciation, the uncertain world economic situation and the sharp decline in oil prices.

OPINION

The Afghan Accords Point the Way for Other Deals

MOSCOW — Where else on Earth would one rather have been this past week than in Moscow? The skies were clear, the weather balmy, the mood of the people summery and light, and conversation everywhere was buoyant with excitement at the events of these days and in expectation of the future. The city was as packed as Bethlebem in the tax-gathering sea-son, and you could sell a room at any inn for a ton of myrrh. Fortunately, I was spared the competition for hotel rooms, having an apartment of my own in Moscow. For me, this past week of superower summitry has felt like one of the culminating events of my life. The stage is set for a great development toward the peace between East and West that has been one of my lifetime's dreams.

This summit meeting has been depicted as a meeting with no major targets, no vital agenda. It is true that no major arms initiative was achieved. But the meeting most assuredly continued the momentum toward the settlement of regional conflicts that was established in Geneva, with the Afghan accords. Such cooperation — often overlooked in the excitement about arms control -could be the most decisive change in relations between the United States and the Soviet Union, beginning an era of peaceful coexistence.

The success of the superpowers in framing an agreement over Afghanistan provided two important lessons and guidelines for the solution of other regional conflicts: first, that the superpowers can deal with each other rationally and pragmatically to achieve solutions; second, that the Russians should be believed when they say that they intend to seek solutions to these conflicts.

By Armand Hammer

throughout the greater part of this century.

I was very glad to play a part in the events leading to the signing on April 14 of the Geneva accords on Afghanistan and have the privilege to see, close up, the development of trust and understanding between Moscow and Washington that led to that historic agreement.

In February 1987, Diego Córdovez, undersecretary-general of the United Nations, visited me in Los Angeles to tell me that talks on Afghanistan were stalled and that I could play a role in the peace process. He said that none of the participants in the Geneva talks could agree on a timetable for the withdrawal of Sovioo preconditions as to the nature of government in Kabul to replace Major General Najibullah. Thus, with dazzling speed, the central problem in the Afghanistan peace process became an issue of credibil-ity and confidence: Could the Soviet Union be believed and trusted?

In Moscow in September, Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and Yuli Vorontsov, a deputy foreign minister, told me that Secretary of State George Shultz had finally accepted that Moscow honestly and fully intended to withdraw. On the other hand, as late as Jan. 7, 1988, President Reagan's chief of et troops and that they could not staff, Howard Baker, wrote to ask my agree on the identity of a leader for a opinion of Mr. Gorbachev's attitudes overnment in Kabul to supplant the ajibullah administration.

Naturally, I told Mr. Cordovez that I would do everything within my power as a private individual to achieve a settlement. During the next 14 months I flew to Kabul once and to Pakistan half a dozen times to confer with President Mohammed Zia ni-Haq and his cabinet and with leaders of the mujahidin. My travels took me in and out of Moscow and Washington for meetings with officials at the highest levels. By the end of 1987 it had become clear that the Soviet Union was determined to withdraw its troops, in extremely quick order, provided come your insight into his current thinking based on your discussions with him during the [Washington] summit," he wrote. "We are unsure just how much the Soviet signals reflect a serious interest in moving for-ward quickly towards an Afghanistan solution and to what extent they are merely 'public relations." I relayed this uncertainty to Mr. Gorbachev in the Kremlin last Jan. 15. I also told him that I felt sure that toward Afghanistan, "I would welinto the quickering peace process un-til and unless he dispatched Mr. Vorontsov to negotiate personally with President Zia in Islamabad.

the Pakistanis would not enter fully viet Union would definitely withdraw by the end of 1988, it was determined to avoid a bloodbath. He did not reply directly to my suggestion regarding a Vorontsov mission to Islamabad, but when I saw Mr. Vorontsov the next day he laughed and said: "You did a job on the boss. Mikhail Sergeyevich ordered me last night to pack my bags and get to Pakistan."

I promised Mr. Vorontsov that I would fly to Islamabad to be there when he met President Zia - a promise I kept on Feb. 10, two days after Mr. Gorbachev's announcement that Soviet troops would begin to leave Afghanistan in May. President Zia and his colleagues were evidently stunned by Mr. Gor-bachev's coup. They admitted as much. General Zia said that the So-viet Union had "stolen a march on us," and one of his most senior advisers voiced the fear that the superpowers "have us in a diplomatic box." President Zia desperately needed the reassurance that Pakistan and the millions of Afghan refusees living in that country would not be abandoned by the United States in the rush to superpower rapprochement. In my presence, General Zia dictated a letter to Ronald Reagan, which I carried to Washington when I returned.

I gave the letter to the president and, when I visited him in the Oval Office to present my report as chairman of his Advisory Panel on Cancer, I urged him to call General Zia. I said: "It will make such a difference if you speak to him personally. If be gets a letter, be will think it was written by somebody on your staff; but if he speaks to you on the telephone, he will be reassured that you personally intend to support him."

that call, the Pakistanis withdray their opposition to the Geneva of cords and went ahead and signed.

Afghanistan has not gone and their major with the same with the sa Afghanistan has not gone away.
The superpowers may have resolved their major differences over the fliet, which Me flict, which Mr. Gorbachev once called "this bleeding wound." But the superpowers are bickering about continuing military aid to the com-batants and, as President Zia will no doubt continue to remind us, the killing continues, the refugees have not gone home and the Kabul good ernment still must be restructured to include all elements, if it is to represent the wishes of the majority.

Even so, the Afghanistan agree. ment bodes well for the future of the world. We may have confidence that Moscow and Washington will apply the lessons learned there to other regional conflicts.

In fact, Mr. Gorbachev told me in April that Afghanistan could provide a model for superpower understanding that could be applied to the Middle East and other trouble spots, including Cambodia. southern Africa and Nicaragua.

The model will work only if the Soviet Union has genuinely turned away from the policy of exporting communism. I believe that it has believe that General Secretary Gorbachev has committed himself to making socialism (not comma mism) work in his own country by raising the standard of living of his own people, and that this ambition is his single-minded priority.

In the three years since he came to power, the Soviet Union has en raged in no new adventures around the globe; it has fomented no new conflicts in the Third World; it has sent no "military advisers" to devel oping trouble spots. In itself, this suspension of expansionist activity is a significant break with Soviet foreign policy throughout the greater part of this century.

However, my chief reason for op, timism in believing that the Moscow summit may have made significant progress toward the resolution of regional conflicts lies in a tiny ancodote relayed to me by my old and respected friend. Max Kampelman.

Max remembered attending a small conference in Moscow which, in conversation with a senor Soviet official, be said that the Soviet Union would soon learn a lesson that the United States had learned in ready — "Empire does not pay." According to Max, the Soviet official smiled and said, "We are learning."

The hope of the world depends upon the truth of that line. We mail all pray that they are learning his? My impression, here in Moscowat ter this lovely summer week, is that the lesson has been absorbed Afghanistan drove it home. " (RRA.

Down Below the Summits, Millions of War Deaths

WASHINGTON — In the real world down below summit meetings, 25 wars are still going on. That is not a typographical error; 25 is the number, as tabulated by a Washington research institute called World Priorities.

Ruth Leger Sivard, who signed the study, concedes the difficulty of getting an accurate casual-ty toll in these wars, but she estimates that they have already taken the lives of 3 million people, four-fifths of them civilians. She also remarked: "The United States and the Soviet Union together spend about $1.5 billion a day on military defense ... The developing countries spend almost four times as much on arms as on health care of their people. Yet 20 percent of their children die before their fifth birthday." She said that protecting Kuwaiti oil tankers in the Gulf costs the U.S. Navy an extra $365 million a year above oormal operating costs. More wars, she said, were fought in 1987 than in any previous year on record. Her catalogue: Latin America: Colombia, about 1,000 deaths a year since 1958; El Salvador, 65,000 deaths since 1979; Guatemala, 138,000 since 1966; Nicaragua, 30,000 since 1981; Peru, 10,000 since 1981. Middle East: Iran-Iraq, 377,000 lives in eight years; Lebanon, 52,000 since 1982. (The study does not include countries in which uprisings have taken fewer than 1,000 lives a year, as in Israel.)

By James Reston

Africa: Angola and Namibia, 213,000 since 1975 (in addition, the Angolan war is linked to a smaller conflict in which 5,000 people have been killed in the fight by the South West Africa People's Organization to expel South African troops from Namibia); Chad, 7,000 since 1980; Ethiopia, 500,000 by war and related famine since 1980; Western Sahara, 10,000 since 1975; Mozambique, 400,000 since 1981; South Africa, 4,000 since 1985; Sudan, 10.000 since 1984; Uganda, 102,000 since 1981. Asia: Afghanistan, 14,000 Soviet troops and 85,000 Afghans since 1979; Burma, 2,000 since 1985; separatist violence in India, 5,000 since 1984; Indonesia (no reliable estimates from East Timor); Cambodia, 24,000 since 1979; Laos and Vietnam, 30,000 since 1979; the Philippines, 60,000 since 1970; Sri Lanka, 6,000 since 1984. This study estimates that overall, since the end of World War II in 1945, the death total in wars, rebellions and uposings of various sorts have taken the lives of 17 million people — about half the number of deaths of the last world conflict.

In London, The Economist, commenting on this study, observed that, aside from the Gulf war, wars between countries have disappeared. The magazine noted progress in the present evacuation of

By William Pfaff

Soviet troops from Afghanistan and in U.S.-Soviet efforts to reduce nuclear arsenals.

The World Priorities study said that present ouclear arsenals, scattered worldwide, alone represent more than 26,000 times the explosive force of all armaments used in World War II.

Many of the present wars are fueled by the United States, the Soviet Union and other industrial countries, and the technology to produce nuclear weapons continues to spread.

The news of the present wars is limited by indifference, censorship and unwillingness on the part of the major governments to share what information they have on these wars with the public. To a large extent, therefore, these are "the forgotten wars," neglected even by those countries that preach the precious value of every human life.

Much was said at the Reagan-Gorbachev summit conference in Moscow about avoiding future nuclear wars, but little if anything about trying to end present wars, fought with everything from clubs and stones to poison gas. Or even about reducing the flow of weapons to the combatants. At least, the major nations that dominate the communications of the world could publish an annual tally of the world's dead.

The Important Meeting in Moscow This Month Is Yet to Come

PARIS — The Moscow summit meeting was of no great or lasting consequence. It no doubt saw Ronald Reagan's last bow on the international stage, a characteristic one, graceful but incorrigibly lightwein t; show-tiz, out cassy show of For Muchail Gorbachev it was distraction from something really serious, the special Soviet Communist Party conference that starts in Moscow on June 28.

What happens there will have a last-ing effect on the Soviet Union and the future of the Soviet bloc. Preparations seem to he going not entirely as Mr. Gorbachev would wish. Several prominent reform figures in Moscow have been turned down as delegates. In the midst of the summit show Pravda published a detailed crifque of local pressures to block popular candidates for the conference.

The public struggle over nominations to the conference is evidence of how far reform already has come. Conflict inside the party was in the past expressed at the top only, kept behind closed doors — settled by though most people still are prepared to think it a sign of renewal. The question constantly to be asked, how-ever, is whether this system, arbitrary and authoritarian by nature, can he reformed in a controlled and limited way. The historical record suggests the contrary - that reform eventually lurches out of control, producing crisis or a return to repression.

Mr. Gorbachev has said that he wants "socialist pluralism." He also wants his way. He wants pluralism to result in the outcome he designates. A to the BBC and CBS with his argument that the Societ work with the second with people are dealt with fairly in terms of that law is perfectly possible. The USSR can remain an authoritarian state without being a police state. To bring police and party apparatus into strict conformity with law, and with a constitution that offers formal guarantees of considerable individual liberty, would be a major reform. The theses say that the distinction between party and state must be "precisely delimited" and that the party should influence the state only through the activities of individual members. Where would that put Mr. Gorbachev? He is merely a party official, yet be conducts himself as head of state and is accepted as such.

The theses hold that "the Leninist conception of democratic central-

Gorbachev is general secretary of the party. Since Lenin, the leader of the party and the Politburo has ruled the Central Committee, and the Central Committee has determined the decisions of the party congresses. They say that eventually more candidates should be named RFK Would Have Made a Difference than there are posts to he filled. Who will choose these candidates? Mr. Gorbachev has already said that the party's membership has to he scrutinized for its support for perestroika.

It used to be, of course, that the party's leader did not ask. He decided. and it was done. Mr. Gorbachev's power still is challenged. But he is trying in a confusing and perhaps confused way, to bring the reality of Soviet government into conformity

His reputation was to he tough, and he could be. He did not like to look sentimental. But when he saw injustice, he challenged it even if that meant violating political orthodoxy. In 1966 the Pentagon refused to bury Robert Thompson, an American Communist leader, in Arlington Cemetery, although he had been decorated for heroism in World War II. Others in Congress were silent, but Mr. Kennedy told the Senate it was wrong "to hate and harry the sinner to his grave." Why? Americans are wiser now about the limits of government intervention, but we are not satisfied with private affluence and social squalor, We want to look for new ways to make American society whole again.

But it must also be the person. After years of contentment with the totem figure of Ronald Reagan, Americans are ready for someone who offers more than reassuring generalities. There is no one exactly like Robert Kennedy, and there need not be. But people are ready again for leadership that tries to grapple with the realities of their life, bitter as well as happy. NEW YORK - The U.S. economy grew in May, the Z2d consecu-tive monthly advance, according to a survey of corporate purchasing ers released Sunday. The National Association of Purchasing Management said its index of economic activity rose to 55.1 percent last month from 54.9 percent in April.

The rate of increase had fallen slightly in the first three months of the year, indicating a slowdown in the pace of economic growth.

A reading above 50 percent generally indicates economic expansion, while a reading below that mark indicates a decline, the group said. For the first five months of this year, the index has averaged

This fascination with the power of creation has propelled Mr. Lagardère, 60, to build a $7 bil-lion communications and hightech empire, mixing and matching his corporate thoroughbreds.

As in home breeding, not every move has brought its anticipated result, but today he con-trols Hachette SA, the world's fourth largest communications company — after Bertelsmann AG, Capital Cities and Time Inc. and Matra Group, a French military, space and telecommanications giant.

His recent U.S. shopping

ree, where he spent nearly $1.16 billion last month to bring the encyclopedia publisher Groher Inc., at about $450 million, and the magazine publisher Dia-mandis Communications Inc., for $712 million, into his Hachette stable prompted the French press to proclaim Mr. La-gardere as back on the offensive.

Hachette is the second major European communications company to strengthen itself with U.S. purchases. Its rival, Bertels-mann of West Germany, vaulted into the lead with estimated 1988 sales of $6.3 billion by swallowing up Doubleday Inc. and the record division of RCA Inc.

Mr. Lagardère's move to huy Grolier and Diamendis, therefore, is as defensive as it is offensive. This time last year the French press wrote of — and, to his mind, relished - Mr. Lagardère's public failure to huy one of France's six television stations, TF1.

"Though everyone wrote that I was nicer in defeat," said Mr. Lagardère, "I would have preferred to be ugly and win." This brashness sets him at odds with the more conservative business milieu in France, where he admits that his style probably both-

MUNICH — West German consumer demand, which has become a main pillar of support for the economy, is expected to grow by 3 percent in 1988, the IFO Economic Research Institute said in a report Sunday. In 1987, demand advanced by more than 4 percent. The slower consumer demand means retailers will be unable to keep sales at 1987 levels.

The retail industry is expected to see sales rise by 2.5 percent in 1988 and wholesale volume will advance 2 percent, the institute said. IFO gave no 1987 comparisons. It also forecast that private incomes would rise 4.5 percent in 1988. IFO noted that prices were starting to rise in West Germamy but that savings quotas were almost unchanged.

PLUS, of course, the REAL chance to earn on solid, fast-growth companies listed on the world's key stock exchanges. All upanies in the program are carefully screened. The program itself MUST rely on winners because it is organized in uch a way that the company offering it only earns when YOU do and you only need $1,000 to join. When you join the Alternative Share Program, your 7% per annum guaranteed return is stashed away in a trustee-held ossier for you. Not a cent of it is touched. When you start to earn, however, the company charges you a percentage of the rollt that your stocks make after that. A simple idea from positive people. to you know anyone else who is CERTAIN enough that your stocks ARE going to rise to risk waiting around for their wn profits? We don't. But, the investors Would motto has always been: if you know what you're doing, you'll make money hat's why we are recommending the Alternative Share Program.

If YOU want to make money with it, fill in the coupon below. The sooner you do it, the sooner you could earn. Only applicable if funds remain invested for one full year.

Yugoslavia Gets Bridging Loan From Germany

BELGRADE - Yugoslavia has won a 172 million Deutsche mark ($100 million) short-term hridging oan from Westdeutsche Landesbank of Düsseldorf, official sources

They said the loan was signed on Friday in Bonn by Ambassador Milan Dragovie and was intended to bridge a financial crush until Yngoslavia gets fresh credits amounting to more than $1 billion from various sources this year.

Yugoslavia is seeking the new loans to stimulate its stagnating production and to help restructure

The sources said the West German loan was part of a common action by a group of Yngoslavia's creditor countries to provide adequate funds to underpin a Yugoslav austerity program, drawn up recently under International Monetary Fund guidance. The program includes curbing wages and spending, while liberalizing pricing and

OUTSTANDING FEATURES OF 1987 OPERATIONS: · Retail banking:

Société Générale,

THE LARGEST PRIVATISED

FRENCH BANKING GROUP

IS PLEASED TO REPORT

on 1987

OPERATIONS AND RESULTS.

- Loans increased by 31.8%. Average total customer deposits, in the parent company's domestic network, rose by 10.1% from December 1986 to December 1987

- Number of private customers with securities accounts reached one million (+57%).

Société Générale developed its international network by opening a securities house in Tokyo and by becoming a member of the Tokyo Stock Exchange. In France, Société Générale ranks first in the options market, and in the case of foreign exchange options bas a 40% market share.

• Financial services: Our lead position in this field was strenghthened, and Société Générale purchased a consumer credit company in Italy with 19 outlets.

1987 GROUP INCOME:

- Despite the unfavourable economic environment, Société Générale further increased its net income. - Net consolidated income was 2,680 million French francs, out of which the group's share amounted to 2,376 million. This result was achieved without any significant sale of shareholdings.

- The group's share of "current income," i.e., net income excluding non-recurring items, increased by

- Net banking income grew by 3.7%. Commission income reached 26% of net banking income in 1987, thus making our income less sensitive to changes in interest rates.

- Operating expenses rose by 10.9% due partly to a change in our methods of consolidation in 1987. Without this change the increase would have been 7% due largely to non-recurring privatisation expenses and to extensive investments in data processing. – Socièté Gènèrale pursued its policy of covering country risks and these provisions now exceed 50%. On the other hand the improvement in the financial positions of our corporate customers, and the ever increasing percentage of low risk assets in our loan portfolio enabled us to reduce provisions by 31%.

At our shareholders meeting on 31 May 1988, it was proposed that 559 million French francs be distributed to sharebolders (+21% in one year), i.e. 23.5% for the group's share of net income. Consequently, a net dividend of 10 French francs (tax credit excluded) was proposed per ordinary share or CIP (non-voting preferred share).

Nestlé Confirms Plans on Formula

Los Angeles Times Service

LOS ANGELES - Carnation Corp., a unit of Nestle SA of Switzerland, has confirmed that it plans to enter the $1.6 billion U.S. infant nutrition market.

Shares of Abbott Laboratories and Bristol-Myers Co., two major producers of baby formula, were lower on Friday amid concern that Nestle was about to enter the U.S. market. Abbott Laboratories is the industry leader, with 55 percent of the market, followed by Bristol-Myers with 35 percent and American Home Products Corp.

Wall Street sources said Carnation planned to sell an infant formula that is already being marketed in Europe by Nestle. Carnation refused to discuss its product until a June 14 press conference, saying only that it would form the cornerstone of a new mutitional product division.

Ioka Retains WBC Title: Foe to Protest

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — Hiroki loka of Japan retained his World Boxing Council straw-weight title Sunday with a controversial draw against Napa Kaitwanchai of Thailand, whose trainer claimed the fight's last round was cut short.

"When loka was in trouble in the 12th round, the timekeeper ended the fight I minute and 20 seconds earlier than the regular three minutes," said the trainer.

Charles Atkins. He said a protest would be made to the WBC. Charles Atkins. He said a protest would be made to the wBC.

The left-handed Kaitwanchai, weighing 1044 pounds (47.2 kilograms), attacked continuously in the 12th with left jabs and right hooks that staggered the champion. Referee Bob Logist of Belgium stopped the fight briefly when loka lost his mouthpiece; when it resumed, loka took more punches to his head and, before the Pistons defeated Boston, 95-90, to win the Eastbell rang, again looked as if he might go down.

NFL Cowboys Trade Dorsett to Broncos

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys traded running back Tony Dorsett, the fourth-leading rusher in National Football League history, to the Denver Broncos late Friday for a 1989 draft choice conditional on how he does next season. Dorsett had sought a trade since Herschel Walker became the Cowboys starter at tailback late last season. Dorsett had announced that, to ease a trade with Denver, he had agreed to forfeit about $2.4 million in deferred payments.

Hatalsky Takes a 2-Stroke Lead in U.S. Golf POTOMAC, Maryland (AP) — Morris Hatalsky, bidding to win his first golf tournament since 1983, shot three-uoder-par 68 Saturday to take a two-stroke lead after three rounds of the Kemper Open.

Craig Stadler, off a course-record 64, Mike Reid (67) and John Mahaffey (68) were two shots back, at 204, with defending champion Tom Kite (71), second-round leader Jim Hallet (72) and Mark Brooks (70) at 205.

Lakers, Pistons to Meet for Crown

INGLEWOOD, California - The Los Angeles Lakers and Detroit Pistons will meet in the National Basketball Associatioo's championship series.

It took a pair of torturous seven-game series to do so, but the Lakers reached the title round here Saturday with a 117-102 victory over Dal-ern Conference championship series, four games to two, and reach the finals for the first time in their 31-year history in Detroit (the franchise got there twice when it was based in Fort Wayne, Indiana, but lost each time).

James Worthy scored 28 points and Magic Johnson had 24 as Los Angeles climbed a step closer to becoming the first team since 1969 to win consecutive NBA titles. Dallas stayed close for three quarters, but the Lakers, staying with the pattern they main-tained throughout the playoffs, hit the Mavericks with a fourth-quarter flurry that knocked them out of contention.

Los Angeles will open the title series at home Tuesday night

Despite enjoying a home-court advantage for Game 7, the Lakers felt the pressure that came from their own success. While Dallas might have considered a defeat only as a small blemish on a great year, a loss by the Lakers would have nearly invalidated an excellent season. • They had the NBA's best regular-season record (62-20) for the second straight year.

• They were the first league team to win 60 games or more for four straight seasons. They had won seven straight Pacific Division championships.

• Pat Riley, their coach, had predicted that but Dallas eventually tied the score with a 5-0 to

The game was tied after one period and was evenly played in the second despite the Lakers' periodically applying full-court pressure. Los Angeles led at halftime, 54-53, thanks to finalminute baskets by A.C. Green and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

The teams stayed even until an 8-2 spurt gave the Lakers an 84-76 edge as the third quarter wound down. Michael Cooper hit a 3-pointer that stretched the lead to 87-77; Rolando Blackman sank two free throws as time expired, but Cooper's shot was an omen for the fourth period.

Dallas narrowed the gap to 87-83, but Mychal Thompson tipped in a Johnson miss. Cooper hit a 3-pointer and Johnson scored after a steal to make it 94-83 with 8:41 left to play. The Mayericks, on a 9-4 run, trailed by 98-92 with 6:15 left in the game, but James Worthy's baseline dunk, on an assist from Johnson, widened the margin to 103-94, and Abdul Jabbar's hook made it 105-94, forcing a Dallas time-out. The celebration was under way.

Boston was hurting against Detroit Friday

Dennis Johnson and Danny Ainge were still himping and experiencing back pains from inju-ries sustained in Game 5, but both were in the starting backcourt Friday night. Before the game Ainge had said: "A couple of pain-killers and a few 3-point baskets can make you forget a lot of things."

If the Celties didn't have enough problems with a pair of injured guards, Robert Parish, the 7-1 center, suffered a bruised left knee that sent him to the bench with 7:25 left in the first quarter. Joe Dumars was called for an offensive

And Larry Bird entered the game struggling with a 37 percent shooting average from the field; the Celtics were shooting 42 percent as a team, 10 percentage points lower than they did run and took a 29-27 lead after Tarpley stole a pass and finished the play with a flying dunk at the other end.

said Clinck Daly, the Piston coach, before the game. "Especially when you're dealing with Bird and the Celuis."

"I don't know what's happened to us," said Jimmy Rodgers, Boston's assistant coach. "We've gone through stretches this series when we have been different as night and day. At times we're standing around, There is no motion in our offense and that's when we get into trouble. This is so unlike us."

But maybe more credit belongs to Detroit's defensive play. In their 15 previous playoff games, the Pistons had held the opposition to fewer than 100 points 11 times.

Without Parish and needing to rest Johnson and Ainge, Coach K.C. Jones used all 12 of his players. Mark Acres and Artis Gilmore played center, but Jones finally shifted Kevin McHale to the middle and settled for Brad Lohaus, who hit two key baskets, as the power forward.

After sitting out the remainder of the first iod, Parish re-entered the game with 5:21 left in the half; limping, he played for less than a minute before leaving again.

Boston shot 37.5 percent in the first half.
(Bird going 3-for-left and Ainge 1-for-9) while Detroit, led by Vinnie Johnson's 10 points, struggled to achieve 50 percent. The Pistons led.
48-46, at intermission.

The Celtics stayed cold (26 percent shooting) and Detroit began to heat up; at the end of three periods the Pistons had a 75-63 advan-

With 7:40 left in the game and Boston trailand Denins Rodmin, who were vying for posi-tion near the basket. As they battled on the floor, Ainge jumped on Rodman. When the modent ended, Rodman and Lohans were

With about six minutes left, Bird also missed a pair of free threws, a rarrity for one of the best free-throw shooters in the league.

The loss marked the end of Jones's coaching reer with Boston. In his five seasons, the Celtics won four conference championships and two league titles. Jones, who has been part of 10 of Boston's 16 NBA championships as a player and coach, will move into the front When you see oumbers like that, you have office. Rodgers is to replace him on the bench.

Prices on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange posted significant gains, with the key market indicator rising more than 50 points.

The Hang Seng Index climbed 54.65 points to close Friday at 2,568.35, while the broader-based Hong Kong Index added 37.20 points to finish at 1,700.02. Average daily volume rose to 861.4 million Hong Kong dollars, up from 672.8 million in the previous week. 672.8 million in the previous week.

The week started off with a 24.71-point drop in the Hang Seng index on Monday, but the gauge rose in every other session of the week, including a 30.43-point advance on Thursday. A government-appointed committee an-nounced proposals to tighten the security in-dustry's self-regulatory mechanisms on Thursday, which helped the market overcome several weeks of dull trading. The committee was appointed after the worldwide stock-price col-lapse on Oct. 19, after which the Hong Kong exchange closed for four days.

London

Prices staged an irregular advance last week, aided by the rising dollar and strength on Wall Street but restrained by fears of rising interest The Financial Times 100-share index rose 35.5 points to 1819.2, and the 30-share industrial index advanced 14.4 points to 1444.4 The market, which was closed Monday for a bank holiday, fell Tuesday, after a report that the recent strength of the pound has curtailed some British exports. But a sudden fall in the currency boosted prices at midweek.

The recovery was slowed, however, by fears of higher interest rates. On Thursday, leading British commercial banks raised their base lending rates to 8 percent from 7.5 percent, but strength on Wall Street helped the London market post a gain for the day.

Oil-company stocks rose on speculative buy-ing after British Gas announced a £370 million friendly bid for Acre Oil.

Milan

Prices broke a recent string of declines and posted a solid gain for the week, which analysts attributed to strength on overseas markets and the results of municipal elections in Italy, which were regarded as aiding government

The Comit index rose to 480.79 from 465.66 a week earlier. Despite the advance, poor investment fund results led to some weakness in stock prices oear the end of the week.

Leading issues closed higher, with Snia BPD notching up a 11-percent jomp and another Fiat Group company, Fidis, adding 5 percent. Fiat itself went up by 3.1 percent. Gemina gained 5.6 percent after selling its Intercootin-entale insurance firm to Winterthur.

Olivetti rose by 4.6 percent and CTR by 3.2. The Ferrozzi-Montedison Group issues also did well, with rises of 8.3 percent for Silos, 4.8

percent for Meta, 3.5 percent for Agricola, and 2.9 percent for Ferruzzi Financiaria. In the insurance sector, Generali went up 2.7 percent and SAI gained 7.5 percent.

Paris

Falling French Interest rates helped stock prices advance in Paris.

The CAC index finished at 335.2, up from 324.3 a week earlier and only 8 percent below its level before the October collapse.

The index has gained 35 percent since late January, but prices remain about 25 percent below their levels in March 1987. At that time, the ratio of stock prices to annual per-share to 1, compared with approximately 10 to 1 now. Analysts said French stocks were inexpensive at current levels.

The franc's firmness enabled the government to move interest rates lower, but French levels remain among the highest in the world. Business prospects, for 1988 are regarded as encontaging.

Many analysts predicted the Nikkei index would hit 28,000 yen in the next several days.

Kawasaki Steel and Nippoo Steel were the outstanding performers last week. Kawasaki finished at an all-time high of 515 yen, and Nippon Steel closed at a record 508 year on Saturday.

Zurich stock prices scored a good gain this past week, as the Credit Suisse index closed at 452.5, up from 437.4 a week earlier, and the Swiss Bank Corp. andicator rose to 509.0 from

Almost all listed stocks gained on the week, and operators said that foreign investors were beginning to recover confidence. They said Zurich prices should rise by around 10 to 15 percent during the next several weeks. Blue-chip issues, such as bank and chemical stocks, were very firm, they said. To the food sector, Jacobs Suchard lost 75 francs to finish at 7,525, which analysts interpreted as a sign of operators uncertainty as to the outcome of its battle against Nestle for Rowntree of Britain. Nestle bearer stock rose by 375 to 8,458.

Among the rising bank stocks, Union Bank of Switzerland added 160 to 3,050. In the financial arena; Gorlikon-Bührle bearer rose 95 to 935, while among insurance issues, Zurich bearer was up 325 to 5,700. The compassionate French crowd tried its best to encourage Zvereva, cheering her at a first-set court change when she was behind by 5-0 and about to serve. But the next game was typical.

Graf won the first point with a backhand winner, took the second on a forehand passing shot, then hit a forehand winner. A blistering forehand return of service by Graf was just wide, giving Zvereva respite. But on the next point, Graf blithely picked up a Zvereva overhead and sent the ball whizzing down the line to take the set.

The second set was over in a blink, and there was Graf running over to the grandstand and getting a boost from a security man so she could kiss her father. In the award ceremony, Graf held the silver championship cup aloft and then took a microphone to address the crowd. She thanked the people for their support and said, "I'm very sorry it

Leconte might not think so. Fans here have always been critical of his up-and-down play. Following the singing of the Marseillaise and a fly-by of French Air Force jets trailing blue, red and white smoke, the crowd cheered loudly for Leconte. But after he lost the opportunity to serve out the first set the crowd abandoned him.

The score was 4-all in that opening set when Leconte, in his first Grand Slam final, produced the kind of winning string that boosts French expectations, breaking Wilander at love. 'Gossiping' on the Baltic Exchange

By Alan Furst LONDON — In the City of London financial district, up Cornhill Road - where the Scottish Widows Society stares across the street at Hermès of Paris lies the street known as St. Mary Axe, and the stately marble pillars of the Baltic Exchange, St. Mary Axe, if romantic imagination ruled the world, would be a narrow lane crowded with brownbrick monuments to commercial sobriety, but down at the corner a Pompidou Center-style building has risen, all hypermodern ductwork and piping, and it would seem that German bombs and contemporary architects have pretty much done for Charles Dickens's London.

Likewise, in the commercial trader's world of markets and exchanges, the telex and the fax machine have long replaced the personal tradition, where business was done face to face, often in coffeehouses, from the earliest days of the British Empire.

On the floor of the Baltic Exchange, however, from noon to 2 P.M. every working day, shipping brokers and charterers, perhaps a hundred strong, gather in twos and threes for quiet conversation and the "fixing" of — final agreement on — contracts. Cargoes find ships; ships find cargoes. Scores of confidential discuss make for a low rumble in the high-ceilinged hall, punctuated now and again by a liveried atten-dant called a "waiter," who sings out names from a sort of raised pulpit at one corner of the trading floor. He is there to help brokers find one another and, after hours, to ring a bell signifying that the day's session has ended.

These men and women are here to gossip. They tell you so quite Alain Hammond, a broker for Transmarine Shipping Agencies, says, "You could call this a very large garden wall — gossip has always played a large part in the shipping business. We know that India didn't have a monsoon last year, that the Soviets are lifting [loading] soybeans at the River Plate. We knew when there was a severe frost on the coffee beans in Brazil, and when there was a minor cave-in on the Panama Canal. This business is an exercise in economic geography.

UPPER EAST SIDE (70'S)

The Baltic Exchange, known affectionately as The Baltic - a gentleman hurrying past was not-ed by the phrase "He's always been a Baltic man!" - is no charming British anachronism. It is the basic, no-nonsense business of maritime shipping: the negotiation of dry-loading contracts between representatives of distribution merchants, for instance grain companies like Louis Drevfuss. and the owners of ships; tramp freighters that ply the sea lanes from Rotterdam to Aqaba, from Monrovia to Hamburg. When contracts are fixed by a handshake on the floor of The Baltic, they are as firm as any sheaf of paper produced by platoons of lawyers. "Our word is our bond"

The Baltic Exchange more or less originated in 1744, with an advertisement in London's Daily

Sea was to increase over the years, reaching one of its high marks in the early 1800s, during the Napoleonic era, when a trade war broke out between Denmark and Britain. Denmark is the choke point of the Baltic, and at the time received such attention as the Gulf does today, as the Suez Canal did in the mid-1950s, as the Panama Canal may in the future. Or they used to bring in the organ grinder from the street outside — with his monkey, f might add. And then there was the time two gentlemen - this was for charity you understand—won a bet by exchanging their underpants in the middle of the trading floor." The Baltic Exchange has not porter, declining to give his name. "We used to have a terrific rugby held its position as the world's only international shipping exchange without competition. A few years ago a trading facility was established in Piracus, Greece, but never achieved The Baltic's dominance. At one time the bar at the Downtown Athletic Club in New York was a favored center for the exchange of ship-ping intelligence. But The Baltic remains pre-eminent. Alan Hammond explains: "London owners talk to each other, we try to know everything and some countries, secretive types, don't like to fix here because they think we know too much."

And The Baltic has grown. It is now home to futures markets in grain, potatoes, corn, soybean meal, meat and tourists — some broker companies specialize in aircraft chartering for freight and passengers. In addition there is the recently established BIFFEX market, which deals in freight futures contracts and sets an index price based on 13 typical shipping

But the main business of The Baltic remains dry chartering. Oil tankers and refrigerator ships are negotiated by telephone and con-firmed by telex or fax but the tramp market, the plain, daily, essential transport of grain and fertilizer, coal and crushed rock, is worked out on the floor of The Baltic. "Computers can't do this," says Inge Mitchell, The Baltic's press officer. "You must have the right ship, the right cargo, at the right price, at the right time, at the right place in the world. That can nly be worked by people, that's what gossip is all about."

Alan Furst's latest book is "Night Soldiers" (Houghton Miff-lin), soon to be published in Britain by The Bodley Head.

Mopery on the Kiss-and-Tell Front

By William Safire Washington — Because I once wrote a White House

memoir of the Nixon era, and because I often issue diatribes or hosannas about books written by more recent White House aides, f am often asked: "Where do you stand on kiss and tell?" My position is unequivocal:

When used adjectivally, the phrase must be hyphenated, as in "I have un affection for these kiss-and-tell books,' said President Reagan." But when the phrase is part of a predicate, and does not modify a noun, the hyphens are not used: "A gentleman," wrote George Bernard Shaw to the actress Mrs. Patrick Campbell in 1921, "does not kiss

The former White House spokesman Larry Speakes and the former domestic adviser Martin Anderson, like the former budget chief David Stockman, have been attacked as being involved in kiss-and-tell." No noun is present, but "activity" is understood; the phrase modifies the understood noun and should therefore be hyphenated. But the phrase itself is undergoing what grammarians call functional shift —a pair of verbs being used adjectively before becoming a hyphenated noon, the way sho d-tell time became show-and-tell defined in Merriam-Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary as "a classroom exercise in which children display an item and talk about it." Similarly, the hit-and-run game, an 1899 description of base-ball, became hit-and-run driving a 1924 expression that identifies a felonious act — with the hyphens intact in the adjectival phrase; the line between adjective and noun is blurred when there is an implied of hit-and-run." The kiss-and-tell phrase is always used pejoratively or in denial. The biographer Merle Miller quoted Harry Truman as saying that Dwight Eisenhower had once considered divorcing Mamie to marry "this Englishwoman," a reference to his wartime driver, Kay Summersby, who steadfastly commented: "I am admitting nothing except that I have never been one to kiss and tell." (Correct, no hyphen.)

"It won't be a kiss and tell"

chief of staff, in early 1987. (The wrote tongue in cheek about an choice to go with quotation marks tempire's view of the baseball manrather than hyphens was The Washington Post's, I think in error, about haling Martin into court on. but that's arguable; the inaccurate charges of assault, battery, smok-prediction was Gottlieb's.) "The ing in the subway, spitting on the new book by Donald Regan," said sidewalk, heresy, violation of the the White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater in 1988, lamching a Note the trivial implication, at counterattack at the memoir that the end of a list of hard-to-proserevealed the first lady's dependen- cute offenses. Russell Baker used cy on an astrologer, "is a kiss-and-tell story in the mold of all books the definition and origin: "I even that seek to exploit the presidency or the first family for personal self-modifying story.)

The book by the former presidential aide Michael K. Deaver is bunch of sleaze," said Edward T. Chase, a senior editor of Charles Scribner's Sons, publisher of the Speakes book, but "Regan's book, re's a lot of valuable information in if. These books are not all just kiss and tell." The Washington just kiss and tell." The Washington minology, aggravated means "made Times chose not to hyphenate or place the term in quotes, and is not serious than common assault be-

That sense has given way to a figurative use in recent years, aning in its most neutral sense "behind the scenes" or "revealing," and in its most frequent sense "with warts and pimples" or "containing embarrassments." Inherent in the phrase is a report by a participant or an insider.

N a cartoon by Jeff MacNelly, a figure wearing a western lawman's hat and badge labeled "Sheriff Meese" sits at a desk in front of a "wanted" poster. The man pictured as wanted by the law is the same Sheriff Meese, and the caption lists his crimes as "loitering" (presunably staying too long in office under fire) and "aggravated mopery."

found a man who committed mopery. Actually, mopery isn't a crime, but only an old policemen's joke in which it's defined as the act of displaying yourself in the nude to a blind person."

Thus, the most common sense of mopery is "trivial violation"; when jocularly juxtaposed with aggravated, the phrase used by cartoonist MacNelly has a nice sense of "trumped-up charge." (In legal terincorrect, but I say hyphenate the noun phrase. That way, the only time the phrase is not hyphenated is when it is used as a verb.

cause it is usually combined with an intent to commit another crime, such as armed robbery. In general English, the verb aggravate is often is when it is used as a verb.

The original meaning of the infinitive phrase to kiss and tell was to boast of one's sexual exploits."

English, the verb aggravate is often used as a synonym for "irritate, annoy," which is not new or incorrect, but I like to reserve it for the sense of "worsen, exacerbate," beby the playwright William Con-greve in his 1695 comedy, "Love Latin aggravare, "to make heavi-for Love": "O fie, Miss," said a er," from gravis, same root as grieve swain wortied about his love's in-discretion (she was in the process of which all presidential candidates

A second sense exists to mopery. That comes from the verb to mope, meaning "to hang about in a state of dejection, to sulk, to behave like a listless teen-ager rejected by the opposite sex." The Time magazine reviewer Richard Corliss referred to direction "sympathetic to the awkward pauses in teen talk, to the mopery of first love."

This second, non-slang sense is the source of mope rock. An article in The New York Times in 1987 titled "Glum Rock: Mope Around the Clock" elicited a letter from Lawrence Haddad of Washington, protesting the assertion that "Mope bands don't lighten up," and arguing that members of "the Mopery" have consciences that can be expressed in lyrics set to melodies that can be danced to. Be very careful with mopery. You may offend a rock group or an attorney general.
